It is again Dr. H. F. Graham, governor of Vermont, our chief executive is pretty thoroughly doctored as far as the Vermont colleges are concerned.

The absence of Vermont names from the casualty lists may mean that the United States has a considerable number of troops which have not yet been in any of the big battles.

Not a word is being volunteered by the government about the size of the American army in France at the present time, but there is not the least doubt that it is large, quite large, one might say, for contemplation of Americans.

Along with the proposal to rebuild the large chocolate factory in Burlington there is a proposal to increase the fire protection in the part of the city where the plant was located. Had there been more adequate service the whole of the large factory might not have been destroyed.

Among those to whom should go a part of the credit for the success of the third Liberty loan are the bank officials who worked hard that the benefits of the government proposal might be set before the people of their districts. This work was largely voluntary and was done without expectation of recompense on the part of the officials of the various institutions. Nevertheless there is an incidental gain to such as participated in the work because of the belief of the general public in their patriotic devotion to the government. The banks have indefinitely been drawn closer to the government, in the minds of a great many people; and that, we believe, is likely to prove of incalculable benefit to the banks in the long run.

A good deal of the element of surprise has been eliminated from the German offensive operations on the western front. Therefore, their offensive loses a large part of its effectiveness at the very outset of the renewed drive. When the lines were fixed on March 20 as they had been established for approximately a year it was a very doubtful proposition where the Germans would strike, for it was a foregone conclusion that they would be forced to strike somewhere before the great American reinforcements should arrive, and the defending armies were kept on the qui vive to determine where the great reserve strength of the enemy had been concentrated for the supreme effort. Now that the blow has been struck and the enemy has penetrated to a considerable extent into the allies' line it is no longer of much uncertainty where the drive will be continued. It will either be in the places where blows already have fallen or in the territory between them. Therefore, the allies ought to be more prepared to meet the renewed offensive.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF GERMANY'S PORTENDED DEFEAT.

This is the anniversary of the event which sealed Germany's fate in the present war. It is the anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania, one of the most atrocious acts ever committed by a nation supposed to belong to the regime of civilization. When Germany sent the torpedo against the great steamship it delivered the boomerang which has now come back to her and which is coming back with ever-increasing force. To be sure, the event was not immediately followed by war; nor could it perhaps be taken as a real casus belli because the Lusitania was not an American ship but was owned by a British company whose vessels ply between American and British ports. Yet American citizens—over 100 of them—were on the Lusitania and were lost in the sinking of the great vessel. So, while the submarine attack on the Lusitania was not the real cause of the outbreak of war between the United States and Germany it nevertheless was the event which shaped the sentiment of the American people, which turned them in horror against the German side and which cemented loyalty to the allies. Other events followed which confirmed the wisdom of that decision of sentiment, events which were directed expressly against the United States and the American people and which eventuated in the declaration of a state of war; but long before the formal declaration of war a year ago the minds of the great majority of the American people were made up. They could not side with Germany in sentiment and in sympathy no matter what else might occur. Germany had stamped herself with the brand of the international outcast. Against that thought German propaganda could make no headway whatever when it was brought into action in a final attempt to influence American sentiment. It went up against a solidly-founded prejudice, a prejudice based on righteous indignation. The sinking of the Lusitania had started it. The torpedo that burst in the side of the great ship was the agency. That is why Germany is bound to lose this war no matter what vicissitudes the allies and the United States may meet.

WILLIAMSTOWN

The ball given under the auspices of the grange last Friday evening was a very pleasant affair and was attended by 50 couples. Music was furnished by the Randolph orchestra, which includes George L. Simons violin, Clarence M. Derment cornet, Miss Ethel Dewey piano, and Karl Goodheart drums. Perley Keyes of Brookfield acted as prompter.

Among those attending the Red Cross carnival at East Brookfield last Friday night from town were Rev. John Irons, C. H. Morse, Frank Covell and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Waldo.

Miss Nellie Tillotson, teacher in the village school at West Berlin, spent the week end at her home here, returning on Sunday afternoon. Two other teachers were her companions on the return trip, Miss Arlene Jeffords of the Barre City schools and Miss Cora Kennedy of the Williamstown village grammar school.

Frank Bruce, a former resident and now living in Swanton, was in town from Saturday afternoon till Monday as the guest of his brother, B. E. Bruce. He was accompanied on the journey by his wife and two daughters, Ethel and Evelyn.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry A. Downs and daughter of Oil City, Pa., arrived in town last Saturday and will visit relatives for a time.

Word is received here that Raymond Fogg, now in the service in France, has injured his hands in some way but that he does not wish to leave his comrades and come home. His brother, Harry, is also with the American forces "somewhere in France."

Carl Willey, a section hand, moved yesterday from Construction hill to the house at the south end of the village lately vacated by John Greenleaf.

Walter M. Williams visited his parents in Randolph last Sunday. The road through the gulf is now in pretty good shape.

No regular substitute being available, mail route No. 1 was covered last Saturday by George E. Wilber, acting as temporary substitute. Peggy Ford made the trip in good time, but came near getting stuck at a slippery spot several rods in length near the foot of the Colt hills in Brookfield.

Among those from town who were in Barre last Saturday night to listen to the speakers and bands at the unfurling of the third Liberty loan flag were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Corlies and Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Chynoweth and daughter, Dorothy.

Rev. G. Wesley Keeling, who lately closed his pastorate of the M. E. church here, finally accepted an appointment to a church in Bayville, L. I.

Clyde Morse went to Stowe May 5. His wife and her father, who were called there by the death of a relative last week, returned with him.

A motor party from Waterbury, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cooley and daughter and Mrs. Blanch Atherton and daughter, Lena, called on Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Martin last Sunday.

Charles Martin of Montpelier has lately visited his cousin, Henry J. Martin.

Mrs. Henry J. Waldo returned last week from a short visit to E. J. Colby and family of Plainfield.

Mrs. Walter M. Williams went last week to Gayville for a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abbott.

Mrs. Laura Ditty has moved into the upper tenement in John Perry's house on South Main street.

John Burnett received news last week of the death of his brother, Abram Burnett, in Stowe, and with his daughter, Mrs. Clyde Morse, went there on May 2.

The demonstration of cottage cheese making in firemen's hall May 2 was rather thinly attended, no doubt partly on account of pressure of spring work and scarcity of help.

We wonder if Postmaster Elwin J. Clogston remembered on the first day of May that it was just one year since he took over the office. It was no trouble at all for the scribe to recall the event, as he was the fellow that stepped down and out after a service of eight years and four months, during which time he served under three administrations—Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson.

Messrs. Frank A. and Willard E. Walker of the firm of Walker & Walker, surveyors and civil engineers, of Barre, were in town May 2 on business connected with the northern line of the Earle property on South Main street, now owned by Mrs. H. A. Holt of Barre.

The work of the Liberty loan committee was continued right up to the expiration of time on May 4, some applications being turned in at Barre banks on that day.

Edwin M. Whitney was in Barre last Saturday to get a load of goods belonging to Mrs. Ditty, who has just moved back to town.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Dow were in Berlin May 5 as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Curtis.

George T. Colby returned from northern New York last week and a little later he received a car of 11 horses, pairs and singles that he bought there.

Ralph Gale, having sold his farm, is moving to the house on Quarry street belonging to his mother, Mrs. Clara Gale.

Misses Ruth and Ruby Bruce were among the business visitors in Barre last Saturday.

Rev. John Robinson, the newly appointed pastor of the M. E. church, was unable to be here last Sunday and the pulpit was filled by Rev. William N. Roberts.

We are to have a local dealer in fish this summer and Henry J. Martin will begin regular deliveries next Friday, May 10.

GRANITEVILLE

Private Malcolm MacAskill Spent April 5 and 6 with John Murray, Since Wounded.

Mrs. Mary MacInnes has received the following letter from Private Malcolm MacAskill of Headquarters company, 101st machine gun battalion, he being now in active service "somewhere in France."

April 10, 1918.
 Dear Mrs. MacInnes: I must answer your interesting letter, which I received yesterday. It was a long time coming over, but you may be sure I was very glad to hear from you. I was glad to know that you were well when you wrote and hope these few lines will find you and Malcolm in good health. I am thankful to say that I am well and have been since I crossed the ocean, except for a slight cold two weeks ago.

We are having good weather right along and I hope it will continue so. Two weeks ago I met a number of Barre boys that were at Fort Ethan Allen with me. Friday and Saturday evening I spent with my friend, John Murray. I
